Indivisible, Says Garrison, for Army Officers to Be Connected With It.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—Senator Wood made public last night a report from Major Gen. Wood out of his connection and that of his son, Capt. Gordon, with the organization of the American Legion.

At the same time the Secretary sent out a letter he had written to Sen. Wood stating that while he hoped the work of the Legion would prove useful, he deemed it "inadvisable for any one under the jurisdiction of the War Department to have any connection with such private organizations."

FOUR BABIES AT A BIRTH.

All Normal and Doing Well, as to the Mother.

REDDING, Cal., March 12.—Mrs. C. O. McKnight, wife of a rancher near here, is the mother of four babies, who were born yesterday. Two of the children are boys and two are girls. Each was perfectly formed and normal in every way.

The physician says Mrs. McKnight is well and happy and that her babies are doing famously.

Mrs. McKnight is forty years old and weighs 150 pounds. She is the mother of nine other living children, all born since 1890.

NOTHING STANDS IN WAY OF LAW FOR WIDOWS' PENSIONS

Proposed Law, Passed Unanimously by Senate, Sure to Pass the Assembly.

OBJECTIONS FADE AWAY

Child Welfare Boards Make It a Home Rule Measure and People Want It.

By Sophie Irene Loeb.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 12.—The Hill-McCue Mothers' Pension Bill, which was unanimously passed by the Senate yesterday, is now being printed for the Assembly, and will likely come up Monday. It is generally conceded that the Assembly will pass the bill with the same despatch as marked its proceedings in the Senate.

The Assembly, which was also Republican last year, passed the Mothers' Pension Bill unanimously with the exception of three negative votes, and since every objection has been practically met in this amended bill by unanimous votes of the committee of both houses having it under consideration, it is unlikely that any further obstacles will be put in the way of its passage.

The only remaining issue, adjusted just before it was voted by the Senate, was the creation of Child Welfare Boards, which all the advocates of the bill as well as the New York State Commission who studied the measure, finally agreed upon and strongly urged.

The proposed amendment was to make this part of the bill permissive, so every other section is permissive which means home rule. But in the words of Senator Wagner: "A mother's pension bill is distinctly a State function, and if the State is going to pass such a bill it should create a uniform administration policy so that this new form of relief in the State will be carried on as its genuine purpose directs—by a body that will carefully consider the cases of widows and children whose only reason for dependency is the inability of the mother to provide property for the child during the school-going period."

THE HOME RULE ARGUMENT THAT WILL WIN.

"Especially there should be no objections to the State designating that there shall be such Child Welfare Boards appointed, when it is specifically stipulated that they shall be composed of citizens appointed by the Mayor, who will serve without pay."

A further argument which also overcame opposition was advanced by Senator Ogden Mills, father of the original Hill-McCue bill (various provisions of which are now incorporated in the present bill), and who has joined the forces in furthering the measure.

He said: "As there can be no appropriations of any money except as agreed by the local authorities all over the State, and the Child Welfare Board is to serve without pay, the fact that the State makes the mandatory provision for a Child Welfare Board—its only mandatory provision—does not seem unreasonable, since it insures to the advocates of the bill a board that will have but this one function."

The passage of the bill was also facilitated by the combined forces of Senators Walters and Hill. The Child Welfare Boards were endorsed by Senators Spring and Newton, who believe it to be one of the best methods in the carrying out of the work.

Speaker Sweet, who is a strong supporter of the Mothers' Pension Bill, expressed the belief that the bill should have no further difficulty in its passage through the Assembly, and will do all he can to expedite its passage. He has received many letters from constituents and close friends all over the State, and these have impressed him with the great demand for this statute everywhere.

Still in the Mountains.

BLUEFIELD, W. Va., March 12.—William Hubbard, nine years old, claimed by the Federal authorities to be the youngest "bootlegger" on record, has been arrested during a raid by a United States Marshal's posse in the mountains twenty miles from Norton.

Young Hubbard, according to the revenue officers, was found, together with an eighteen-year-old cousin, operating a still which had a capacity of thirty gallons.

Assemblyman Albert Smith, who fought hard for mothers' pensions last year, said: "I want to see this bill go through mainly for economic grounds and its humane aspect. I believe it will save the State considerable money for other dependents that are the result of not providing for them during the tender years."

Martin McCue, author of the bill, said: "I do not see how any man can vote against this bill which has now been framed to meet almost every objection argument that has been advanced, and I think every member in the Assembly should be glad of the opportunity to vote for it and thus help make it a law."

Assemblyman Fred Burr, a member of the Commission on Relief for Widowed Mothers, says: "I cannot believe it possible that any serious objection could now stop this bill."

SATURN'S RING CHANGES.

Wider on East Than West Side During Past Month.

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz., March 12.—The crepe ring of Saturn has been observed and measured at the Lowell Observatory here, it was announced today. It has been persistently wider on the east than on the west side of the planet during the past month by a difference of five-hundredths.

No phase effect or defect of illumination of the ring, it is said, is sufficient to explain the phenomenon on account of the diminutive size of the meteorites composing it.

SAYS GIRL, "I'M 21;" SAYS MOTHER, "I'M 21"

Mrs. Shute Gradually Raises Her Age to 35, but Sticks There—Twins Wed Them.

SOUTH NORWALK, Conn., March 12.—Miss Josephine Shute, twenty-one, and her mother, Mrs. Dolly May Shute, were married here yesterday to twin brothers, Alfred and Moslem Lyle.

It was a queer combination anyway, but when Mrs. Shute gave her age as twenty-four, Town Clerk Herbert R. Smith peered over his glasses and said "21!" Under quizzing by him she gradually increased her age to thirty-five, but there she stuck, insisting she was no more than fourteen when Miss Josephine was born.

Mrs. Smith said: "Oh, very well, and Justice Jones W. Curnow proceeded with the double ceremony."

Mrs. Shute said she was a tailor and her daughter said she was a school teacher. The Lyles are Danbury farmers, twenty-five years old. The older Mrs. Shute-Lyle was the merriest of the party after the age question had been settled.
